American Tourist Ousted by Russia

MOSCOW. (AP) — The Soviet Union told the U. S. Embassy today that an American tourist identified only as Robert Christner has been expelled from the Soviet Union as a spy.

The embassy said it knew nothing about Christner and first heard of him in the note delivered from the Soviet foreign ministry this morning.

The note charged he had been sent to the Soviet Union in July to collect industrial and military intelligence. The Russians did not say when the expulsion took place.

San Antonio Native

The State Department said it has records showing a passport was issued in recent months to a Robert Charles Christner, 27, a native of San Antonio, and that he had stated he intended to visit the Soviet Union.

Christner listed his residence and that of his mother as Sparks, Nev. State Department officials said they assume this is the same Christner mentioned in the Russian note.

Tass, the official Soviet news agency, said the foreign ministry had warned the U. S. Embassy against "exploiting tourists for intelligence purposes."

It was the first case of American spying charged by the Russians since the downing of Francis Gary Powers' U2 plane May 1, and the second expulsion of an American citizen to be announced in as many days.

U. S. officials blamed the expulsions on a Soviet campaign to inflame public opinion against America in preparation for the Powers trial next week.

Charges Rejected

Col. Edwin M. Kirton, the U. S. air attache in Moscow was dered to leave the Soviet Union yesterday. (See pictures, Page 14) He was accused of organizing a spy apparatus and of photographing military installations. His assistant, Capt. Irving T. McDonald Jr. of Provincetown, Mass., was accused of similar activities but was not ordered out of the country. U. S. Charge D'Affaires Edward L. Freers rejected the charges.

The Tass statement said: "State security organizations have established that during his trips in the Soviet Union, Christner drew topographical maps of various areas, marking on them railways, bridges and radio aerials.

"He also photographed certain objects.

"He engaged in these activities in Uzhgorod, Lvov, Kiev, Baku and elsewhere. In Baku, for instance, he photographed warships in the bay."

Meanwhile, the Washington Evening Star says that while Russia was expelling Col. Kirton yesterday on espionage charges, four Russian military

Easterly Wave In Caribbean

A moderate easterly wave located yesterday near the Lesser Antilles this morning had passed through the Windward Islands and was located in the extreme east portion of the Caribbean Sea.

The U. S. Weather Bureau here said the easterly wave was attended by showers and widespread cloudiness but added no strong winds had been reported. Rains averaging 2 inches have fallen in the Windward Islands since yesterday.

Another area of heavy cloudiness and widespread showers has been located in the Caribbean just north of Panama.

Conditions in both areas are not too favorable for tropical storm development, the bureau said.
